Proven and tested by the old Egyptians and newly discovered today. Black cumin oil, evening primrose oil and borage oil contain a high amount of the polyunsaturated fatty acids linoleic and linolenic acid, also known as omega-3 and omega-6 fatty acids.

It has been scientifically proven that the body can transform these vital fatty acids into hormones that support the tissue. These tissue hormones on the other hand can also reduce the release of histamines. Histamines are substances that can lead to allergic reactions in the body (e.g. of the skin or the airways).

Due to the high amount of contained essential fatty acids these valuable oils can step in to balance out the metabolism and also to strengthen the immune system.

With Sabol[®] we combine a highly effective combination of cold pressed Egyptian black cumin oil, evening primrose oil and borage oil.

This tested and proven recipe has been recommended by veterinarians and therapists for years.
